Copenhagen concept store Sirin dazzles with a diverse design mix

Although concept stores are a dime a dozen these days, Sirin sets itself apart for its wildly diverse catalogue that includes geographical posters by Estonian designer Bold Tuesday, beard combs made from Soviet-era recycled vinyl, handmade porcelain by Norwegian outfit Modellstuen, and bespoke furniture by newbie Danish company Novel Cabinet Makers. Located in Copenhagen's buzzy Nørrebro quarter, the store's eclecticism is a homage to Vladimir Nabokov, whose pen-name was Sirin and whose peripatetic life mirrors that of its owner, Natalia Enge. 'We are a Russian-Norwegian family that lived in Paris, Moscow, London, Oslo, and Luxembourg before moving to Denmark two years ago,' says Enge, who spotted a gap in the Danish design market for a more international mix of products, specifically 'continental European charm versus Scandinavian cool, a mix of old and new, furniture, magazines, photography, jewellery and perfume.' The store also hosts regular exhibitions, its most recent being a retrospective of the work of Anton Mayr. Ransburg Tværgade 7, Copenhagen, tel: 45.5275 5973, sirincopenhagen.com

■ ONE LOVE

On the look out for suitably striking ways to mark our 200th issue, a new project from the charming Swiss art partnership Pascale Wiedemann and Daniel Mettler came to our attention. About a year ago, the husband-and-wife team embroidered the word 'finest', or rather its mirror image, on a classic white T-shirt by Zimmerli. The pair then posted it to Zimmerli, asking if the idea might be the basis of a collaboration. The company came back with an enthusiastic thumbs up. The premise of One Out Of One - as the art-meets-undies project has been tagged - is simple. You pick a word that gets to the core of who you are and Wiedemann Mettler will embroider it, white on white and in reverse, on a Zimmerli T-shirt. Naturally, we wanted our own one-off T-shirt that recognised our age and distinctive qualities, made, as Wiedemann has put it, 'with brain, hand and heart'.

■ IVY LEAGUE

With a string of rarefied restaurants and hip hotels under his belt, from The Ivy and Scott's in London to Cecconi's West Hollywood, Martin Brudnizki is the go-to guy for a bit of grown-up glitz. And with the imminent launch of his design studio, &Objects, you'll soon be able to take a bit home with you. 'One element is geared towards collaborations,' says Brudnizki. 'The other is in-house designs, which will allow people to buy the chandelier from The Ivy, bar stools from 34 or furniture I designed for my own flat.' The range will launch with a new collection for British bathroom company Drummonds, as well as chairs, bookcases and lamps, including the 'Wherwell' wall lamp (left) whose hand-blown spirals look like Murano glass but are actually made in England. andobjects.com
