The new eccentrics

This style isn't necessarily about the weird and wacky, it's about adapting the norm, manipulating the regular and being completely unpredictable. Eccentrics are born not made, so we can only point you in the right direction and help to get your creative juices flowing... then it's up to you to find the most flamboyantly arresting mix you can think of. Use eye-catching, witty combinations, of really rather straightforward items, in an amusing, novel way. You don't need to be as nutty as a fruitcake but it helps...

This stunning shower room is really quite normal, with its classic British-style sanitaryware; normal that is, except for the exceptional mural, which gives the room an alternative edge. The classic Dalby shower by Drummonds, which has exposed chrome-finished pipes and an optional hand shower, features alongside the striking mural, which is protected behind glass. The Naver basin, which boasts a visible waste pipe and two thin legs in a chrome finish, complements the overtly traditional shower.

Other showerhead options available. Shower £2,270; basin £2,400. drummonds-uk.com

Make a splash with this traditional Usk bath by Drummonds, which has been creatively teamed with the germane photograph of a diver, making an interesting cameo in this delightfully original bathroom. The plain muted walls and floor accentuate the miscellaneous accessories which sit around the freestanding cast iron bath, which is shown here in a hand-painted red finish. Bath £3,210. drummonds-uk.com
